Notes on the Catalog

This descriptive catalog includes annotations wherever possible to show relevance to James Boyd and his work, such as identification of signatures and inscriptions.

Some entries include the notation of shelving order as indicated on his book label inside a book’s front cover. Examples are S-A-1, L-B-3, LR-A-1 in which S = his upstairs study, L = the first floor library, and LR = the living room. The second letter corresponds to the bookcase section, then the shelf number. The small number with the #sign is the library identification number for each book.

This was Katharine Boyd’s copy. #1358.

4 lvs., 13-14 p, 1 lf., 288 pp., 16 lvs. of publisher’s works.
One copy, with Boyd book label. Boyd’s own copy. #1578.
6 lvs., 3-603 pp., 1 lf. 20.75 cm. Dedicated “To My Brother”. Illustration on book jacket is a black silhouette of a carriage and horses on a dark blue background, by Roger Duvoisin.
This novel, a fictional account of Boyd’s home town of Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, is in two parts: Book I, “The Dark Shore”, was published serially in Scribner’s Magazine in May, June, and July of 1934. The completed novel went on sale April 25, 1935. Two copies.

C.1—Autograph copy: “To Lucy and Belle / from Jim”. Lucy and Belle were Boyd cousins. TOSP #471.

C.2—No Scribner “A”. Personal copy of David Whisnant, Boyd’s literary biographer. His notes are on the front free end paper; chapter outlines are on a 5 x 7 card found in the volume #1577.

“To W.A. Frazier Esq—
Dear Mr. Frazier—
To inscribe a book to a Frazier of North Carolina gives me a strange feeling. ‘So there,’ I tell myself, ‘my characters did really exist. And here is the man to prove it.’ Or else like the Frasers of my novels you, too, [and] I myself are only dreams. In either case your existence emphasizes the basic identity of all forms of experience [and] I thank you for it [and] send you all good wishes/
Yours sincerely/ James Boyd/ Southern Pines N.C./ April 17 ‘36”.
Purchased from Bull City Books, Durham, NC. #2630.
Bitter Creek. New York: Charles Scribner’s Sons, MCMXXXIX [c1938, 1939; Scribner “A” for first edition].
